

State Representative Abdullah Hammoud is serving his third term in the Michigan House of Representatives, a powerful voice for civil rights and a leading mind for health policy. He represents the 15th House District, comprised of his hometown, Dearborn. As a proud son of immigrant parents, Hammoud has been unwavering in his commitment to Michigan and Dearborn for more than a decade.

Hammoud earned his bachelor's from the University of Michigan-Dearborn and two master's degrees in public health and business administration from the University of Michigan-Ann Arbor. After working as a healthcare consultant at the Center for Healthcare Research and Transformation, he served with the United Nations Relief and Work Agency in Jordan, where he led a successful initiative to promote health and wellness among diabetic refugees throughout the Middle East.

For more than a decade, he has been at the forefront of the fight to protect Michigan's land, air, and water by educating legislators and community members, developing critical environmental justice policy. Expanding his business acumen has also greatly aided him in crafting economic policy to address the issue of income inequality, and to better support the hardworking middle class. His unique background has fostered great success in developing the state budget and securing funds for his community. In his spare time, he enjoys competing in obstacle courses, spending time with family and friends, and engaging in dialogue that fosters social benefit and growth.
