

Sawsan Najar is an Iraqi Chaldean American born in Baghdad came to the United States in 1994. Sawsan began her singing career taking piano and vocal lessons, she began singing professionally in 2004, singing at both private and public events in Michigan. As her career expanded, she began recording her own albums singing both folklore and popular genres. She also competed in one of the famous programs in Lebanon, it's called super star in 2007 and she was one of the top ten girls. Sawsan's popularity in Iraqi community has led her to travel across the country and Europe to perform in myriad and settings and shared the stage with many great artists from the Middle East . Sawsan love and support her people. She would participate in any charity events to raise money for Iraqi refugees that impacted by the recent war. Sawsan sings because she enjoy what she does, and she is still going strong.